TEA CEREMONY

The tea ceremony has gone down in history thanks to the famous Chinese tea lovers. It is more of a ritual and spiritual practice created to enjoy the taste and aroma of a magical drink. The Chinese tea ceremony is called "Gongfu Cha" ("the ultimate mastery of tea drinking").

For its implementation, only special elite varieties of oolong tea are used, consisting of young leaves and buds harvested high in the mountains and dried and twisted using special technology. Two to six people participate in the sacrament of the ceremony, which usually lasts about an hour.

This is the only way to achieve a special atmosphere, which the masters call the contact of souls.
